[SSC TA (IT & CE) Exam. 2005]

- (a) Ramanujam
- (b) Aryabhata
- (c) Patanjali
- (d) An unknown person

Explanation: The concept of zero as a number and not merely a symbol for separation is attributed to India, where by the 9th century A.D., practical calculations were carried out using zero, which was treated like any other number, even in case of division. The credit for inventing 'zero (0)' goes to Indian mathematicians and the number zero first appears in a book about 'arithmetic' written by an Indian mathematician 'Brahamagupta'. Zero signifies 'nothing and the current definition calls it an 'additive identity'. The Indian mathematicians Bhaskara, Mahavira and Brahamagupta worked on this new number and they tried to explain its properties. It wasn't that somebody suddenly came up with the idea of the zero and the mathematicians throughout the world accepted it. Around 500 A.D., Aryabhata, an Indian mathematician, devised a numbers system and the symbol he used for the number zero was also the number used to represent an unknown element (x).

Some Indian scholars have stated that Charaka of Charaka Sainhita existed before Parkin, the grammarian, who is said to have lived before the sixth century B.C. Another school argues that Patanjali wrote a commentary on the medical work of Charaka. They say that if Patanjali lived around 175 B.C., Charaka must have lived some time before him. Another source about the identity of Charaka and his times is provided by the French orientalist Sylvan Levi. He discovered in the Chinese translation of the Buddhist Tripitaka, a person named Charaka who was a court physician to the Indo-Scythian king Kanishka, who in all probability reigned in the second century A.D. From the above discussion, it would seem that Charaka may have lived between the second century B.C. to the second century A.D.
